

HUDSON & MIDDLETON

English Fine Bone China

2017

A POTTED HISTORY

Founded in 1875 Hudson and Middleton, designers and manufacturers of 100% British quality fine bone china, is one of the oldest potteries in England. True to its heritage the operation still runs from the original premises in the heart of Staffordshire.

Over the years' market access, fashion and consumer taste have shifted emphasis from traditional dinnerware and tea sets to the highly popular mug. The choice of shape and design is diverse and the company have showcased individual artist and design studio works with top-class prints on quality china. This makes for a highly innovative and continually changing offer, and we partner with many designers to develop their work on to a wide range of ceramics shapes. Despite the huge popularity of mugs, especially in The West, the traditional tea set remains a popular choice, in the UK as well as in a number of overseas markets. More than 20% of Hudson and Middleton's' output is sold internationally and the Hudson and Middleton brand and trading name is known throughout the world.

Hudson and Middleton has long been known as a supporter of small to mid-sized and fledgling design talent. It has promoted, showcased and grown with many now well-known names, and along the way has evolved a way of working with new and developing brands by introducing them to a wider audience.

The model not only adds ceramics to the designers' portfolio, but supports their growth by giving the designers access to the Hudson and Middleton sales channels in the UK and overseas. Many hold ambitions to control their own destiny and sales activity, and the approach we have developed supports this, giving the designer room to develop their own businesses.

It doesn't stop at ceramics though, Hudson and Middleton is now part of a group that has started to manufacture home and kitchen textiles, coasters and placemats to add to the range of ceramics.

DESIGNERS & ARTISTS

Anna Wright.

Anna creates lively illustrations of animals, birds and hand drawn pattern with pen, ink, found fabric and feathers. A gentle sense of humour runs through all her work, alongside a passion for drawing cultivated in the Illustration department at Edinburgh College of Art.

Her latest children's book, Magnificent Creatures, was published by Faber & Faber in November 2016. and her range of prints, cards, ceramics, homeware & accessories is always growing with new designs added every few months.

Madeleine Floyd

Madeleine Floyd grew up in Oxford. She has become one of Britain's best loved artists and illustrators and works from her studio in London.

Madeleine studied at the Courtauld Institute of Art, University of London. She went on to study fashion design before graduating from Camberwell College of Art and Design, London in Fine Art and Graphic Design. Madeleine paints, illustrates, prints, writes, designs, licenses and exhibits her work around the world. She works in watercolours, inks and oils. Her work can be enjoyed on a growing range of prints, cards, ceramics, homeware and stationery.

RUTH SARAH...

Ruth's delicate layering of translucent watercolours and mark making makes her style ephemeral, catching a transient and fleeting moment. She studied in Edinburgh and inspired by the natural world, returned to her studies to qualify as a Landscape Architect.

Ruth's painting style and design philosophy are deeply rooted in nature and inspired by, the varied landscape and wildlife of Britain and the countryside surrounding Cheshire where she now works from her studio. Ruth loves exploring the countryside and takes the inspiration of the natural environment to create thoughtful and considered designs, refining her work to inspire a connection to nature.

DESIGNERS & ARTISTS

In 1995 Joanne was accepted into the Royal Academy of Arts, London where she trained for three years as a painter. Her work was exhibited many times at the RA and now reside in private, British and international collections such as Pricewater House Coopers, BBC, Bank of Hong Kong and Boots, amongst many others.

After London, Joanne lived on the Fort Peck Lakota Sioux Reservation in Montana. Her work is still inspired by the interconnectedness of nature, surrealism and the transformation of the human spirit into myth, folklore and magic. Her work is loved for it's vibrant colour and otherworldliness.

Katherine Tyner

I have been drawing all my life. I like to think that the desire to describe my childhood pets through little sketches was the beginning of my training and commitment! Animals continue to be a constant source of inspiration for my work, but I also enjoy painting other subject matter at every opportunity.

After my art foundation (BTEC diploma in Fine Art), I studied History and Philosophy of Art at University of Kent (B.A. First Class Hons.) with the intention of going into the art world with more job security than being a practising artist might allow. I continue to paint people's beloved horses, dogs and cats but predominantly work as a freelance illustrator, in watercolour and other media, from my home in the Kent countryside.

Growing up in Rural Norfolk with a mother who radiated interiors knowledge and know-how making everything look beautiful, Aurina couldn't help but soak up some of her ideas and inspirations.

Her route to this industry was certainly not a direct one from Agricultural College to London and the wine trade but the country life kept calling and drew her back to work with her mother in the world of retail and interiors.

After the birth of baby number two and fed up with the abundance of pink and blue, pirates and fairies - Aurina Ltd was born. A true wonky kitchen table start-up, in a crumbling farmhouse in rural Norfolk! Whilst juggling a two year old and a new born the wheels were set in motion.
